

Week 10

Games of the Week

SJ Prep at Roman (Northeast), Saturday 7:00pm – This game is for all the marbles in the PCL Red Division. If Prep wins, they win their 8th straight Red Division title. If Roman wins, it all depends on the final score as Prep, Roman or Father Judge could claim the title. Keep in mind that Prep has not lost a regular season game since 1999.

W. Catholic at Wood (Wissahickon), Sunday 12:30pm- Another game that is for all the marbles, but this time in the Blue Division. Both teams are 6-0 in league play and it all comes down to this regular season finale for the division championship.

Other Games to See

Central at Bok (Bartram), Friday 3:00pm – If Bok ever had a chance to advance in the Public League playoffs, this is the year. Taking on a Central team that is not as good as some of the more recent Central teams, Bok is poised to be in a position to decide between continuing on in the District 12 AAAA playoffs or opting out for the AAA PIAA playoffs after this week.

Delaware Valley at Prep Charter (Gratz), Thursday 3:00pm – This game is on the list of games to see mainly because it is the varsity debut of Delaware Valley, who has played a JV schedule for their first season with a football team. They will take on Prep Charter, who has been playing at the AAA for a few years now. If nothing else, it should be interesting to see.
